On Saturday morning I woke up early. It was a beautiful day. All the grey clouds had gone and left a clear, blue sky. The sun was shining brightly. I decided to surprise Mum by making her breakfast in bed. I crept quietly down the stairs so she wouldn't hear me. I poured some cornflakes into a bowl. Mum doesn't like soggy cornflakes so I put the milk into a little jug. Then I got a big brown egg from the fridge and put it in a pot to boil. I put a piece of bread in the toaster. By the time the egg had cooked the toast was cold but I didn't think Mum would mind. I carried the tray carefully upstairs. "Surprise!" I said, as I walked in the door. My hardworking Mum was still asleep but she soon woke up. She said it was the best breakfast surprise she had ever had but next time she wants me to wait until eight o'clock before I wake her up.
