Henare was a very large boy for nine years old so he was alloud to play for his school's best rugby team. Last Saturday he was very excited because his team was playing in the final of the competition. He quickly ate his favourite breakfast of toast and peanut butter and ran off to join his freinds at the sports ground. Everyone was there when he arrived. Evrybody wanted to see which team would win. The players ran out onto the feild and the game started. Both teams seemed evenly matched and no tries were scored in the first half. After half time the centre through the ball to Henare.

The next second he was off running straight down the middle of the pitch. The try line was in sight when he felt himself grabbed from behind. He was caught! What should he do?

He pulled, and tugged, and broke free. He hopped around another tackler and charged forward as if fired from a canon and dived for the line. He slid across the wet grass and finally stopped under the posts. A loud cheer went up. Henare looked up and there was his Dad with the vidio camera.

"Your a champion, son. That was an awesome try!"
