

Food storage in plants

How to do this task:

- Drawn below are four different ways plants store food to help them survive during the winter.
- Cut out these diagrams.

a) Place each example you have been given next to the picture of the type of plant storage organ this example is.

Look at an example of a tap root and a tuber.

b)

Apart from size, describe the main differences between them.
